Judge Dayton Says He Had Voiced No Opinion They Should Be in Prison.

TESTIFIES FOR HIMSELF

Col. Roosevelt May Appear in Hearing Before House Judiciary Committee.

Judge A. G. Dayton, of West Virginia, went on the stand yesterday in his own defense before the subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee appointed to inquire into charges made against him by Representative Neeley, of West Vir-ginia, in behalf of labor organizations. The investigation was authorized in response to a resolution offered by Mr. Neeley, in which the charge was made that Judge Dayton was friendly to certain corporations and unduly harsh to labor unions involved in litigation before his court his court.

Testifying yesterday Judge Dayton reviewed his decision in the Hitchman Coal and Coke Company case, now pending in the United States Supreme Court. This ase brought him in conflict with the Inited Mine Workers of America.

Cites Miners' Agreement. Judge Dayton said that the Mine Workers Union had entered into an agreement with the coal operators in Illinois, Ohio, and Western Pennsylvania which would have had the effect of driving the West Virginia and Kentucky coal out of the market which the states named supply. He said that the contracts between the union and the individual minors, togethr with the union oath, took away from they were absolutely controlled by the officials of the Mine Workers He declared that he made an exhaus tive study of all the precedents involving labor questions, and was forced to the conclusion that the restraining order asked for by the Hitchman Coal and Coke Company should be made perma result of conscientious performance of what I regarded as my duty, and were not dictated by hostility to labor organizations,' Judge Dayton was asked whether or not in a charge in proceedings in which several miners were before him charged with contempt in failing to obey an in-junction of his court he had expressed the opinion that he was disposed to send the higher officials of the union to prison. He replied that, as far as he could remember, he had been lenient to the miners who had been charged with contempt, and had carefully explained to them the scope of the injunction order. Finally, he said, he released them upon their individual promises that they would in the future obey the injunction

Judge Makes Denial.

The West Virginia jurist entered a general denial of the charges brought against him by the labor unions, which instituted the proceedings before the House committee with a view to the impeachment of Judge Dayton.

The subcommittee has not decided whether Col. Roosevelt, who appointed Owens, manusing director of the South-orn Commercial Congress, spoke on "The Spirit of Gen, Washington." Rev. Paul E. Hickok, paster of Metropolitan Pres-byterian Church, spoke on "The Down Representative George R. Smith, of Minnesota, spoke on "Might Does Not Make Right." Among those present were:

WILSON TRADE BOARD SELECTIONS OPPOSED

Nominations Will Have Stormy Time in Senate, According to Indications.

President Wilson sent to the Senate yesterday his nominations for the Federal Trade Commission, the board that is to Trade Commission, the board that is to regulate the big corporations of the country as the Interstate Commerce Commission has regulated the railroads of the country. This important new commission is to consist of:

Joseph E. Davies, a lawyer, now United States Commissioner of Corporations, secretary of the Democratic National Committee and an active Democratic leader in Wisconsin.

William J. Harris, now director of the Census, formerly president of a Georgia fire insurance company, and ex-chairman of the Democratic State Committee of Georgia, having served as Woodrow Wilson's campaign manager there.

as Woodrow Wilson's campaign manager there.

William H. Parry, of Seattle, former editor of the Post-Intelligencer of that city, chairman of the committee which financed the Alaska-Yukon Exposition, once treasurer of the city of Seattle and a promoter, George Rublee, of New Hampshire, a lawyer, formerly associated in practice first with Victor Morawetz and then with Cotton & Spooner, both of then with Cotton & Spooner, both of New York, and recently active with Louis D. Brandels in shaping the Wilson program of anti-trust legislation.

Edward Nash Hurley, business man of Illinois, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.
The personnel of the commission, into whose hands the President is to commit the business interests of the country, was disappointing to members of Conwas disappointing to members of Con-gress, Democrats as well as Republicans. The commission was regarded as ex-ceedingly weak, so far as business ex-perience is concerned. Only two mem-bers of the commission, Hurley and parry, seem to have practical qualifica-tions of this character, according to these critica.

Judging from indications yesterday, the nominations will have a stormy time in the Senate, and many believe that they will fail of confirmation. If this occurs, the President though will propurity conwill fail of confirmation. It this occurs, the President, though, will promptly confer recess nominations, and thus the five will take office and inaugurate the new system of Federal regulations without the indorsement of the Senate.

The Senate was prepared for the flomination of the Davies Commissions of the Commissions of the Davies Commissions of the Commissions of the Davies Commissions of the Commis

SLAIN FOR THEFT OF $3 WORTH OF FLOWERS

Burglar, Fleeing from Greenhouse Shot Down by New York Policeman.

New York, Feb. 22.-A roughly dresse unidentified man gave his life for 100 carnations at 2 o'clock this morning in Woodhaven avenue, near Old South road, Richmond Hill. He was shot and in-stantly killed by Patrolman Charles O. Dannhauser, an honor man of the Rich-mond Hill police station, while escaping from the rear of a greenhouse owned by Henry Brockman, a florist.

The sound of breaking glass attracted Dannhauser's attention as he passed the greenhouse on his rounds. He went to the home of the owner, a few rods away, the home of the owner, and his son Henry, and roused Brockman and his son Henry, ir. Together the three men returned to the glass structure.
